

Module 9 - Teaching today's diverse learners

Authors: Teresa De Fazio and Ann Luzeckyj

Year: 2017

Ann Luzeckyj:

Welcome to Module 9 - Teaching today's diverse learners, my name is Ann Luzeckyj and I've been working with Teresa De Fazio to develop this module for you. It's designed to support to you to gain insight into understanding and developing ways to teach the diverse learners in your institutions.

Teresa De Fazio:

My name is Teresa De Fazio and I have been working in the area of student diversity for many years now. It's a fascinating area, it changes, there are many things to learn – it's always exciting.

Completing this module will help you understand the various forms diversity takes in our university student groups. Also, it will you identify and manage differences in your student group, and work with strengths in order to have a structured, strategic and positive approach to working with student diversity in your classroom.

Ann Luzeckyj:

As suggested by the National Audit Office (UK) over a decade ago, it is important to teach the students that attend our universities, not the students we imagine or hope are attending our universities. This module is designed to support you as you teach today's university students. We hope you enjoy it.

This resource is part of the Contemporary Approaches to University Teaching Course available through the Canvas Network under a CC Attribution Share Alike license.