Mick Grimley:
Welcome to week five of Swinburne's Autism MOOC. My name is Mick Grimley.

Emma Donaldson:
And I'm Emma Donaldson.

Mick Grimley:
This week's topic, Emma, is transitions. Tell us a little bit more about transitions and what type of transitions are we talking about?

Emma Donaldson:
We are talking about transitions from both a macro and a micro perspective. So macro might be transitions across the life span. So transition from early intervention to primary school or elementary school into secondary or high school, and then right through into higher education, the workplace and into elderly and housing. So we're going to go right across the spectrum of transitions. But we're also looking at the transitions of the day to day. So the transition from one class to another or the transition from the shopping centre back to home care. So there is a whole range of transitions that we're looking at this week.

Mick Grimley:
OK. And we've got another skill this week. The skill this week is called 'try it out'.

Swinburne Commons

Title: Week 5: Transitions (Autism MOOC)
Author(s):
Mick Grimley (Swinburne University of Technology),
Emma L. Donaldson (Swinburne University of Technology)
Year: 2015

Audio/video available from: http://commons.swinburne.edu.au

Copyright owned by presenter and Swinburne University of Technology. This transcript is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution-NonCommercial-NoDerivs License. http://creativecommons.org/licenses/by-nc-nd/4.0/
Emma Donaldson:

Yes.

Mick Grimley:

Tell us a little bit about that.

Emma Donaldson:

Yes. So last week we made a plan and this week we are actually going to try it out. So using those plans, we're going to go and use the trying it out in a practical sense for the week and then we're expecting everybody to come back and report on that in our activities.

Mick Grimley:

So trying it out is trying it out in your own lives and coming back and reporting on it?

Emma Donaldson:

Yes. Yeah, that's right.

Mick Grimley:

Fantastic. Really looking forward to this week.

Emma Donaldson:

Likewise.

Mick Grimley:

And that concludes week five introduction. Again, we'll see you next week.